CHALLENGES

During discussion, Manhattan attendees surfaced issues they are experiencing in their outreach:

COVID-19 Hurdles
- “Feels inappropriate to push Census to people who are struggling with COVID and basic needs.”
- “Trusted messengers [are] over capacity” as they respond to the pandemic.
- It is hard to “integrate Census messaging when everyone is being bombarded by content.”

Digital + Language Divides
- During social distancing, it is harder to engage populations that “do not have internet access and other folks [who] are not on social media.”
- “Differing languages [in one neighborhood] is a major barrier” - it is hard to tailor outreach and find translators.

Hard-to-Engage Populations
- Formerly incarcerated, since they are not concentrated geographically.
- Seniors that cannot access technology and are concerned about COVID.
- Immigrants (especially Latinx communities), due to fear and mistrust of government.
OPPORTUNITIES
Organizations shared what is working - the innovative strategies they are piloting during COVID-19:

Analog Outreach
- Include Census flyers with food distribution at food pantries and within mutual aid networks.
- Provide swag or incentives (like gift cards to support local businesses) to complete the Census.
- Couple Census outreach with mask distribution.
- Distribute materials at essential local businesses.

Digital Outreach
- Use phonebanking, with a focus on landlines.
- Incorporate Census messaging into wellness check-ups.
- Utilize geographically targeted Facebook ads.
- Integrate a Census curriculum into homeschooling and teach-ins for parents.

Messaging
- Connect Census funding to healthcare, food stamps and educational programming.
- Provide people with the Census hotline, encouraging them to call.
- Share that self-responding is better than enumeration.

Trusted Messengers
- Youth from immigrant families
- Churches and Temples

NEXT STEPS
Attendees defined their next steps to collaborate with grantees, the City and funders:

COLLABORATION + RESOURCES
- Ensure Mayor DeBlasio and Governor Cuomo include Census messaging in their briefs.
- Expand phonebanking and predictive dialing capabilities for organizations.
- Translate resources to more languages, especially for the African diaspora.
- Create a repository for organizations to share experiences, materials and collaboration opportunities.

OUTREACH
- Collaborate on a City-wide Day of Action.
- Integrate Census outreach more deeply into COVID-19 service provision, like food distribution and wellness checks.
- Transition to messaging and resources that highlight Census as a tool for a just recovery from COVID-19.
